ALL IS WELL

No Cases of the Plague
Yesterday.Disposition of the Long Residence to Be Decided Upon Today.
Other Items.

No cases of plague were reported yesterday, nor were there any suspicious cases of sickness in Honolulu. The body of Edward H. Kahookano, who died of the plague on Sunday in the house on Young street, near Aloha lane, was cremated early in the morning and the house is in strict quarantine, all of the people living on the premises having been removed to Kalahehi detention camp.

Only two persons are in the pest hospital at the present time; they are H. M. Levy, the Hawaiian Hotel clerk who has never officially been declared a plague patient, and the Chinaman Sen Kam, from Iwilei, who has officially been declared a plague case. Levy is getting along fairly well towards recovery and Sen Kam is also much better.

Board of Health Meeting.

The principal matter of business before the Board of Health yesterday afternoon was the disposition of the house wherein the last plague victim died. Dr. Wood reported to the Board that he had visited the premises early in the morning. The building is a large, new cottage, in a lot by itself on Young street near Aloha lane; it is owned by Mr. Colburn and was inhabited by G. A. Long and his family.

Dr. Wood, addressing the meeting, said: "The native died in the cottage itself, although he had been sick in a small building in a corner of the lot away from the main building. He was taken sick Friday night, but his illness was considered nothing more than an ordinary cold; after he became very sick on Saturday, he was removed by his friends from his room in the smaller building to an apartment in the house itself, where he died on Sunday. Up to February 24 this man was employed as a guard by the Board of Health; since that time he had apparently been doing nothing."

"I would like to have the Board visit these premises; I believe that there is a chance here of disinfecting so thoroughly that it will not be necessary to go to the extreme of burning. Whenever we have considered it necessary to burn an infected building it was because the structure was 'incapable of being disinfected in any way' except by fire." This residence of G. A. Long, it seems to me, is capable of being disinfected. The house is new; is separate from any other buildings; is raised up off the ground; has all the light and ventilation necessary, and is perfectly sanitary. Everything in the house could be thoroughly swashed with a strong disinfectant solution and the place could be sealed up and fumigated as many times as is necessary.

"The outhouse containing the room in which the victim lived could be burned, together with the privies. Then, if advisable, the cottage could be left unoccupied for a number of months and a fence erected around the place. I think there is almost no danger from rats in this case; the house affords no opportunity for the rodents nesting and there is really no fear of rats spreading the disease there. Kahookano could not possibly have taken the disease in the house; the probabilities are that he got his infection outside."

Some Bills Considered.

Dr. Wood referred to several bills on the table which he did not think should come under the heading of "suppression of the plague." He took up first a bill from the Pala plantation for $187.50 for sending the steamer Lehua to Honolulu to bring the news of the plague cases in Kahului to the health authorities here. This bill was, however, approved by the Board.

A number of other bills for the building of a scow for carrying refuse to sea and a wharf from which to load the scow, amounting to $1337, was considered. Dr. Wood thought that the Interior Department ought to stand this expense as the scow, etc., was not necessarily simply for use during the plague and had, in fact, been very badly needed before the plague broke out in Honolulu. Nevertheless it was the will of the Board that the bills be approved, as the expense was incurred as an emergency measure under plague conditions.

Dr. Wood expressed it as his opinion that a good many outside accounts were being paid by the Board of Health out of the plague appropriations which greatly magnified the legitimate plague account.

Three Hilo physicians had sent in their bills for $25 each for holding the post-mortem examination in the Serrao case. It is customary for only one doctor to charge for a post-mortem, others can attend if they wish but ask no remuneration. It was decided that only one of the Hilo medicos should be paid.

The Disposition of Rats.

"I think we should adopt more energetic measures to get after the rats," said Dr. Wood, "unless the rats are infected by the plague, how are we to account for cases of the disease breaking out after intervals of several days in different parts of the city? Lots of rats are being destroyed daily by small boys and soldiers with fire-arms; they find many of the animals in the trees. The destruction of the rats is certainly worth all it costs; a great deal of money has already been paid out for this purpose, but the results are not all they should be. I think the Board should seriously consider this matter."

Dr. Emerson suggested employing the mongoose to destroy the obnoxious rodent. He thought it would be a good idea to build a fence around one block consideration of the premises and no reason to the contrary appearing, I do hereby declare that the said corporation, the Olaa Coffee Company, Limited, is hereby dissolved and that the surrender of the articles of association filed July 24, 1895, is hereby accepted on behalf of the Hawaiian Government.

An Old Panacea.

In these days it is interesting to see what our forefathers put their trust in as a remedy for the plague. The following is from an old cookery book, dated 1672:

The Plague-water which was most esteemed in the late great visitation. Take three pints of muskadeine, boil therein one handful of sage and one handful of rue, until a pint be wasted; then strain it out, and set it over the fire again.

Put thereto a pennyworth of long pepper, half an ounce of ginger, and a quarter of an ounce of nutmegs, all beaten together; boil them together a little while, close covered; then put in two pennyworth of mithridate and one pennyworth of Venice treacle, and one-quarter of a pint of hot angelica water. Take one spoonful at a time, morning and evening, always warm, if you be diseased; if not, once a day is sufficient in the daytime.

It is a most excellent medicine, and never faileth if taken before the heart be utterly mortified with the disease. It is also good for the smallpox, measles, or surfeits.

Drop Dead.

An amusing game played by many of New York's midday luncheoners is called "drop dead." It is played with a cup and five small dice. The object is to gain the highest score, all the spots counting except the deuce and five, the turning up of either of which kills the throw. Nothing can be counted so long as there is a deuce or a five in the cast, and when either is thrown it is withdrawn, gradually reducing the number of dice in the cup until all are exhausted, when the player "drops dead." The number of throws each player may have is limited only by the number of times he can avoid the appearance of deuces and fives. He may lose four dice, yet keep the fifth going on ace, three, four and six until his score passes hundreds. Money is not played for in these simple games, only cigars and luncheons, drinks and good will being the stakes.

The Deadliest Poison.

Talk of the careless handling of poisons, which in some cases amounts to criminal neglect, caused a careful drug store man to point out some facts about some of the deadliest poisons the other day. "The smell of pure prussic acid is always fatal," he said, "the discoverer of the poison himself having been instantly killed by one whiff of it. It kills the instant it enters the lungs as gas. Pure prussic acid is never sold nor handled. Atropine, though it has not a harmful odor, is so deadly that as much of it as will adhere to the end of a moistened forefinger will instantly cause death. Nitric acid burns wood, and through iron plate; in fact, it will destroy whatever it touches."

WHEREAS, I am satisfied that the vote therein certified was taken, and I am further satisfied that all claims against the said Olaa Coffee Company, Limited, have been paid and discharged.
